The Honorable Joseph J. Farnan, Jr.
United States District Court
844 North King Street
Wilmington, DE 19801

RE: LG Philips LCD Co., Ltd. v. Tatung Company of America, et al.
C.A. No. 05-292-JJF

Dear Judge Farnan:

During the short linguistic exercise at the conclusion of the evidentiary hearing held this morning, one of the words selected was the English word "modem." Ms. Lain translated it as "modulator." We understood counsel for defendants to say that translation was wrong.

Counsel for LPL would point out, however, that the word "modem" means "a device for transmitting usu. digital data over telephone wires by modulating the data into an audio signal to send it and demodulating an audio signal into data to receive it." The American Heritage College Dictionary (4th ed.). The entry for "modem" in Wikipedia (the Internet's free encyclopedia) shows that modem is a "portmanteau constructed from modulate and demodulate."

LPL believes, therefore, that in a real sense, a modem is a modulator, and that Ms. Lain's translation was correct on this point, or at the very least would have been clearly understood in the context of witness testimony.

Respectfully submitted,

Richard D. Kirk (#0922)
